

WHY USE RECRUITING PROFESSIONALS TO MAKE A HIRE?

Outsourcing is a wise business decision, particularly when it comes to increasing strength and capabilities of your company's human capital assets. Here are nine leading reasons, according to members of the National Association of Personnel Services, why employers should partner with recruiting professionals for their staffing needs:

1. Corporate HR and business hiring managers are so overwhelmed with other responsibilities that it is difficult to build and maintain a network with outside professionals who would be suitable for positions.
2. It makes sense to outsource those things that others do better, thus not distracting hiring managers from their core competencies.
3. Recruiters have talent and skills to find the diamonds within the industry.
4. Recruiters apply focused-attention to specific openings, allowing them to address all the details and produce qualified candidates faster.
5. Employers are presented with individuals they would not have access through traditional means of recruiting such as advertising, job boards, etc.
6. Recruiters save time and increase productivity for their clients by presenting pre-qualified candidates that fit all parameters.
7. Recruiters provide an objective third party perspective throughout the selection process eliminating wasted time and squandered resources.
8. A recruiter serves as an extension of the client organization and is in the best position to present a positive image of the organization and the specific opportunity.
9. Recruiters take the time to understand their clients and what makes individuals excel within their environments, then they search and find the right individual.

Ultimately, a recruiter's greatest value is verified through the on-the-job performance of the individuals they place. Properly utilized, a recruiter should be able to consistently deliver better-qualified employees to the client's organization, in less time, and at less cost than any other alternative.